A New Dimension to Professional Service

Cardiac surgery centers rely on the specialized skills and expertise of a perfusionist to provide for extracorporeal support in the total management of patient care. As we negotiate the new constraints of today's healthcare system more and more hospitals are looking for new ways to deliver cost effective services at all levels.

Advanced Medical Resources, a perfusion service company founded in 1998, provides a host of professional perfusion services to hospitals, as well as a variety of supply and support programs.

Through its many management services AMR has proven effective in meeting the needs and demands of hospitals providing new and current Cardiovascular care.

Experience the Benefits of Contract Perfusion

The AMR philosophy of a professional cooperative environment has proven to be a successful alternative to both the Perfusionists involved with out system and the hospitals for whom we provide our many services.

Our AMR team members experience unparalleled personal and professional growth while maintaining a high level of personal autonomy.

AMR client hospitals experience an effective, cost efficient solution for acquiring professional Perfusion Services, supplies, and support without losing the departmental based management of their objectives.

Experience the benefits of working with a rapidly growing perfusion company that offers hospitals a cost-effective solution to the growing demands of the healthcare industry.
